

White Crosses On SR 80 Questioned

Margaret Irvin
Editor of Belle Glade I, a graduate of Belle Glade High School, Duquesne University, Pittsburgh and has taught school two years, here.

In a speech to the Business and Professional Women's Club of Belle Glade, Monday night, Margaret Irvin spoke out urgently for the removal of the white cross "death markers" along state road 80.

"The men who decided to put this project into effect," she said, "are to be commended for taking the responsibility of doing something about the number of deaths and accidents that occur on that road. It is good that an interest has been taken, but unfortunately, this particular action, as statistics show, will not only not serve as a deterrent to accidents on that road, but will be directly responsible for an increase."

"Most accidents occur," Miss Irvin explained, "when the driver is distracted by an argument he has had, or by an arrest, or by a cross alongside of the road that says where some motorist got killed, or by his own fears of accident."

Miss Irvin cited five reasons why the crosses caused accidents:

1. They instillate other accidents a person has had, or even those who have not.
2. They distract the driver's attention from his driving on the road.
3. They get the person out of "present time," back-minding his own real or feared accident, or those of friends.
4. They cause him to lose confidence in himself as a driver, and control over the drive, and his car.
5. They cause him to feel that he has no control over his car, or the road, and that he can do nothing to avoid being involved in an accident another driver might cause.

Miss Irvin gave examples in Georgia, New York State, and Arizona where these methods

County Commission OK's $250,000 Bond Issue

Growth of the county street improvement program and aid to home owners who may take advantage of installment payments covering drainage and paving spurred commissioners Tuesday to approve a $250,000 revenue bond issue noting that the applicant properties improved by the program would guarantee repayment and set up revolving fund for future work.

Chairman E. F. Van Kessel noted that such a bond issue method was far preferable to an alternative funding from ad valorem taxes. Board members stressed the fact that the fund would be repaid by those benefiting from street improvements.

County Administrator Jack Deas and Fiscal Agent Curt Goss were authorized to prepare the bond issue.

Commissioners also approved a $300,000 contribution to award prizes for the U. S. Open Short Fishing Tournament scheduled in the county August 31 through September 1.

Miss Irvin explained the last year's sales tax increases questioned by the board two weeks ago have been incorporated for the time being said Joyce Kenneth Bernick. He also signed the revised permit sign signs to increase forms to be prepared by the county attorneys office.

Revenue said 3,400 thousand participants are expected for the bond issue.

Registration Shows Voter Apathy—Lack Of Interest

Mrs. Rene Lee, Tax Assessor and Collector, is registering voters at the Post Office, a new site for voter registration.

Lack of interest in what Vera C. Jones, City Clerk, classified as the prime reason for voter apathy toward City elections. This is why the County has 4,000 registered voters from Belle Glade, and the City only has 2,000," she said.

Registration at the Post Office has been "flat," Mr. Jones said, with both the City and the County averaging about 25 registrations each per day.

"We're still trying to make up for the 375 names we had to purge from the books," she said. Names that were purged were of persons who either moved from the city, died, or had no voice in the last two elections. Mr. Jones said many of the names were those who had not voted in the past two elections.

Many ideas to get eligible voters to register have been tried in the past. Mr. Jones said that City door to door registration has even been considered, but if the City does that "they (the voters) would probably want to carry the voting machine door to door."

In order to be eligible to vote in the City of Belle Glade a person must be 21 years of age, a resident of Belle Glade for at least one year. The City books opened August 1 at the Post Office and the City Hall. The registration table at the Post Office will close August 15, but the City Hall will remain open until August 30.

Mrs. Jones says she hopes for quite a few last minute registrations.

Panokee Council Accepts Insurance Boost - Discuss Low Income Housing

A premium hike of $2870 for an insurance policy covering "bodily injury to Public Endorsement" class was accepted when the Council meeting Tuesday night.

The most marked increase was for "bodily injury to Public" coverage, which jumped from $245 last year to $2750 this year, although the basic coverage premium increased from $735 to $1100. Milton Carpenter, who represented Lloyd's of London, the insurance firm with whom the city has the insurance, said the level of rates resulted mainly because of "lawlessness, riots, and lack of respect for rights and order," making last year's rates for the same coverage "unprofitable" for the insurance firm.

The minimum charge for basic and bodily injury insurance is based on the number of regular police officers and auxiliary police officers the city employs, said Carpenter. The new rates for the basic policy are $80 per police officer and $30 per auxiliary officer. The "Bodily Injury" coverage costs $500 per police officer and $75 per auxiliary officer, he reported.

Councilman George Tucker said it is "things like this" that cost "us" taxpayers money, after he computed the increase to be about 1/3rd.

Carpenter pointed out that if the city does not carry insurance that covers bodily injury to the public, it can be used in the case of accidental injury to innocent bystanders. The "Bodily Injury" clause covers accidental injury to bystanders, assault and battery, false imprisonment and malicious prosecution, he said.

A representative from Farmers Home Administration attended the Council meeting Tuesday night. A proposed resolution of the City, "in principle," approved the FHWA's development of the area on State Market Road for a low cost housing project.

The proposed project would consist of two, three, and four bedroom homes on 70 x 100 lots, totaling 150 homes which will be built cooperatively. The two bedroom homes will cost $8,000, the three bedroom homes $9,000 and the four bedroom homes will cost $10,000. All homes are equipped with refrigerator and stove. The mortgage will be for 40 years at an interest rate of 3%.

Included in the average monthly payment of $65 to $75 are taxes, insurance, mortgage payments, and landscaping around the homes. Down payments, the representative said, should not exceed $200. There will also be a community facilities building which will have laundry facilities.

The representative from FHWA said that his company was anxious to begin the project so that the people of Palatka in the low income bracket which is from $3,000 to $6,000 per year, can own their homes.

In other business the Council accepted the bid from Fairchild Products Corporation for supplying a sewer cleaning machine at $2355.63.

Wanted to buy a 14 page advertisement, costing $72, in the special convention issue of Florida Municipal Record, out of the $190 budgeted for miscellaneous advertising.

Accepted a letter from the State Comptroller approving the tentative tax roll submitted by the City for payment on the 100% assessment basis.

Approved a letter from County Commissioner E. W. "Bud" Weaver indicating that the County Commission has $4650, available to the City of Palatka for the purchase of concrete to be used in rebuilding the East Main Street Bridge.

Took action on a letter from R. O. Crosby requesting street work in the East Main Street area. Commissioner Wilkinson added, "Give the street commissioner authority to get the street paving work." (Continued Page 12)

SAWGRASS SAGAS A GATOR MIGHT MAKE YOU HURT YOURSELF

This is another in a series of pioneer adventures as told by Lawrence E. Will, Glades historian and pioneer businessman in Belle Glade.

In my ramblings to and fro in this state and travelling up and down in it while searching out old settlers of Okaloosa County, I've met with some right interesting people. I'll have some who reckon that one of the most outstanding of these was Mrs. Lula Curry Russell over Punta Gorda way, and also her ex-gestator-husband son Walter Curry, and her daughter Albertine White Jones, the first white child born in Okaloosa County. Lula was probably one of the first women to live here on the lake. When I visited her she was eighty years of age and only a big as a minute, a minute-and-a-half, or two minutes, but she still had plenty of zip. Lula told me that she had been born at Webster (that's Kanawhite today), and that she aged sixteen she had married William Jones, and one child down.

The representative from FHWA said that his company was anxious to begin the project so that the people of Palatka in the low income bracket which is from $3,000 to $6,000 per year, can own their homes.

but the biggest business, bringing in a million dollars, but the very first catfish from the lake were caught and shipped by Will Curry and William Strickland in August 1900.

Walter Curry told of a hunting trip with his father, John Curry, when Belle Glade today. Walter had just killed a gator, and his father told him the largest he had ever killed. Walter's father had once shot a gator measuring two feet and four inches. Walter then caught a baby gator which was swimming. He tried to make it swim, but it kept coming back to his head against the boat. Finally, in disgust, he exclaimed, "If you won't swim then you can walk!" and tossed it onto the bank. The little fellow, then gave the gator evidence of the grand hailing sign of distress, at which the mother roared from the bottom and with a mighty sweep of her tail knocked the boat sideways, which toppled both men into the water. However, the son seemed satisfied and didn't try to follow up her attack, but hurried home to mind her young'un.

A similar experience happened to Johnnie Albertine, a Belle Glade fireman, when he was night hunting in the Bolles Canal in 1925. Johnnie was in the bow of his boat, a lantern on his head, eight 1 1/2 volt dry batteries in a pocket in his back and a 12 gauge shotgun in his hand. He shot an eight foot gator which swam toward him. He was about to shoot, but when he saw the gator's head inside and tried to climb aboard. Johnnie was pitched overboard, clear to the bottom. He was caught on Big Bear Beach in the Three Day Hurricane in 1910. They had a right hectic episode, but all lives were lost. Lula and her family hummed and fished on the lake and the river for fifty years. (Continued because)

SENSING THE NEWS

By Thurman Sensing

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Southern States Industrial Council

THE LESSON OF CZECHOSLOVAKIA

Whatever the immediate outcome of the Czechoslovakian situation, it should be clear from a reading of recent news that Communism has not changed its character. Hopefully, American "liberals" who have been saying that the Russia of today is vastly different from the Russia of Stalin's times will acknowledge to themselves and to others that they were wrong.

A few years ago Walt Whitman Rowan, then head of the State Department Policy Planning Council and now a top White House adviser, was the author of the thesis that Communism is "mellowing." The "Fascist," however, have concluded that there is nothing about the thinking or actions of the Soviet Union as soon as the Soviets saw that their power position in Czechoslovakia was being slightly threatened, they began to display their military muscles. They demanded that the Czechs fall into line.

One of the pet phrases of recent years has been "polycentricism," meaning a variety of centers. The "liberals" vowed that Communism no longer has a single center, Moscow, but is decentralized and developed in a variety of independent ways. From the Czech situation, however, we can see that the Russians hold that they are the only and sole source of policy for the Communist world. They demand that their Central European satellites toe the mark and respect the authority of Communism in the Soviet Union.

The end result of these developments on the international scene is that Communism is not mellowing.

It is instructive that the Czech situation should develop in this period before the American presidential election. The future of the cold war is still the chief issue facing the American people. If the U.S. fails to actively strive for victory in the cold war, it will continue to lose ground in the worldwide conflict between capitalism and Communism.

To a new generation of Americans has grown up with no memory of the Communists record of tyranny and betrayal. Young Americans in their twenties aren't old enough to remember the soft Communist outflow of the Roosevelt New Deal, the giveaway of lend lease supplies to the USSR, the surrender of Eastern Europe to the Russians at the end of World War II.

These young Americans don't have personal recollections of the Soviet spy cases which show that the Russians built their first atomic weapon on the basis of information stolen from the U.S. or supplied by traitors. They don't recall the case of Alger Hiss, the high-ranking State Department official who served as a Soviet agent.

Older Americans need to help educate younger Americans and explain to them how the interests of the U.S. were sacrificed by the soft Communist outflow and the development of the international scene.

These questions aren't ancient history. They are living questions that pertain to basic attitudes regarding the cold war, the struggle between the forces of freedom and the forces of tyranny.

The record will show that America's "liberals" have been consistently wrong about Communism for 20 years. They have laughed at anti-Communism, saying they "see Reds under every bush." Meanwhile, the Soviets have swept on through success, capturing Cuba and penetrating Africa, the Middle East and Southeast Asia. The "liberals" have been demanding soft Communism as containing "democratic elements," whereas Communism is a brutal and authoritarian as ever. The United States "liberals" have misled American foreign policy. It is imperative that there be a change in leadership in Washington, in foreign policy thinking as well as in the handling of domestic strife, which also stems from Communism's much time toward the Communists threat. The people need to act in 1968.

Uncle Dan from Doolie Says

Dear Mister Editor:
This was the time of summer when everybody out our way was trying to find a cool spot. The fellers was setting around trying not to work up a sweat at the country store Saturday night and Bug Houdum reported he was ready for winter on account of he already had more energy when it was cold.

Ed Doolittle said he had never saw Bug use no energy so he couldn't figure what he wanted with it. Anyhow, Ed said, he recalled Bug wasn't never too keen on whatever kind of weather he was having at the time.

Clam Webster allowed as how that's what is wrong with the human race, always wanting what they ain't got. He said then fellers setting in air conditioned offices was probably wishing they was on some beach taking their caters to a trip.

Zekke Grubb said he would like to be on some beach, but he said he would be setting in the shade watching the parties. He reported he had seen where some beaches the gals ain't putting on them bikinis swimming suits (this summer, they was painting 'em on). When was wearing a nice bathing suit, they can stay out of jail, and the men folks was keeping their eyes on the situation, was Zekke's words.

The fellers at the store, Mister Editor, was just the remaining age, but they was still in the looking and talking age. I reckon even Zekke's preacher would forgive 'em for discussing these matters off the record and where their old lady couldn't hear it.

The feller that runs the store talked in to say he got a evil eye on the store the biggest thing she was wearing was her white gloves. Her outfit didn't bug no back at all, and not much more in front and where their old lady couldn't hear it, where she was sitting on the storekeeper, she said she was talking to him if he could help her and she said, "No, my I just look."

Josh Clodhopper said he had to go to a good word for he had saw a piece in the papers where this big legless hallelujah keeps a cat of hair spray in his locker.

Personal, Mister Editor, I didn't take no part in the discussion. I figure women had ought to be free to wear what they want. At least in summer when they ain't wearing much you can tell the gals from the boys. And you'll have to admit that ain't giving any no more.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dan

THE G.O.P. PLATFORM

One of the functions of party conventions is the adoption of a platform. To many these documents are largely a game of politics, in which something is promised to as many groups, segments and blocs as possible, in the hope of winning votes. To others the document is a guiding policy statement of the convention and party to be observed and followed by a Republican President and Congress, if elected.

The platform of the major parties are thus significant documents, more important than detractors would indicate and yet not fully binding on a President or Congress. Viewed with this background in mind, the recently-adopted Republican platform seems an appealing one in most areas.

Admittedly, it is general. On the two greatest issues of the moment it is moderate. It does not call for intensification of the war in Vietnam but calls for shifting more of the burden to other nations and for a fair settlement. On the issue of crime and law and order, it calls for stern action against crime and disorder in the streets but also suggests efforts to eliminate the causes of crime and disorders.

While the platform calls for tax credits to corporations adding the fight on poverty and related welfare eligibility requirements for impoverished Americans it does not advocate a guaranteed income. It also includes a call for a reorganized farm program, an end to federally-coerced strike settlements which are inflationary, economy in government, free trade among nations, support of labor, and credit to those burdened with the cost of higher education and opposition to the admission of China into the U.N.

The platform is largely the work of Senator Everett Dirksen of Illinois. It is a true statement of his views and a defeat for extremists on both ends of the spectrum and would appear to have national appeal.

Florida Land Rush

On a recent trip to the West Coast (of Florida) we saw several billboards proclaiming "This is Wal-lace Country," maybe a comeback from a popular cigarrette or more recently, Robert King III, did for the governorship. We hate to disagree with your article about this "everybody's country" . . . sorry about that!

Letter to the Editor

Editor:
By all journalistic standards any column which is written in the first person singular should be bylined. Yet perhaps it is better that "Too Late to Classify" of August 8th is not bylined since the author of the article not only shows a lack of ability to think and reason but also shows evidence of serious mental tendencies when he states that those who do not agree with his opinion on gun control legislation are "unbalanced, uneducated, and just plain nuts." Tactics such as these not only detract from the opinions expressed in the column but show bigotry and extremism on the part of the author.

Although I believe that many lives could be saved by proper enforcement of strong gun control legislation which would curtail registration of both guns and their users, I have no intention of stating that all gun owners are bad, and that all gun owners are unbalanced, uneducated, and just plain nuts. I am sure that many gun owners are law-abiding citizens who are committed to the saving of lives. The legislation which is being proposed is a complete violation of the rights of the human life, since the inalienable rights of the human beings would be small if I can do so reason for me to object to this legislation. I believe that gun control can be saved by strong gun control legislation.

Editor, The Herald
Shapiro is leaving off the name Russell Kay, well-known vigilante columnist, who has been writing under the name "You Late to Classify" for the Herald for many years.

My only suggestion to Shapiro is to go back and read the column once more. "People kill people," which is actually what it is all about. Registration of all vehicles and drivers did not prevent highway deaths, although the registration of all vehicles which have been used in shooting incidents the police normally return the weapons to their owners within a couple days. It goes without saying that any law which is not enforced is a law that is not a law. Yet we should not shoot all laws.

Many people object to getting occupational licenses or to getting driver's licenses. I am sure that these licenses are aimed at preventing the wrong type of person from practicing an occupation or driving a car, a person causing too much grief to society.

This may be the answer to preventing criminal mindsets from returning to society after a year or more to kill again, at least one term to kill again, at least one term to kill again, at least one term to kill again.

Too Late to Classify

By Russell Kay

The "big company" image most of us have, is often misleading. Usually we tend to link big company operations with the big city but it is not necessarily so. Sometimes big companies are developed in small towns.

That's why I was so intrigued recently to come across a remarkable success story involving a young Florida business man who is operating a big business in the relatively small East Coast town of Melbourne.

In a single decade 60-Minute Technician Service has grown from a single "package" cleaning plant into one of the largest franchise operations in the Southeast, with plans for early expansion to other sections of the country.

The company was founded by energetic John L. Hopwood, Jr., 32 year old inventor whose idea was to employ automation in providing customers with a convenient, simple and speedy dry cleaning service. Every step was designed to produce a maximum return at minimum cost while avoiding the problems confronting massive cleaning plants, such as labor and transportation.

The concept of package plant and design caught on quickly in Melbourne, so Hopwood decided to expand. Each new plant was refined and streamlined, even to the point of providing drive-in facilities.

By the time 60-Minute Service had grown to a 25 store chain the company found itself suffering from management growth pains. They found it difficult to come to terms with the size and attitude. This led to franchising.

A year long study was conducted before switching to the franchise system. Seventy stores were operating when the switch was made. To give you an idea how successful the franchise system proved, in the past 18 months it has developed into 125 units, with plans in Florida, Georgia, North and South Carolina, Alabama, Missouri, Tennessee, and Virginia.

The parent company now employs 350 people and has 10 headquarters in Melbourne and plans call for the opening of new territory in the north and west.

"In franchising," said Hopwood, "We are able to blend the desire of ownership with the parent company's experience and a combination of the two, better customer service."

The parent company provides three weeks of professional training, centralized computer accounting, supervision to maintain high standards of operation, advertising and desire of ownership with the parent company's experience and a combination of the two, better customer service."

"The Lord God is a sun and shield; the Lord will give grace and glory; no good thing will be withheld from them that walk uprightly." These words from Psalms are the Golden Text of this week's Christian Science Lesson—Sermon titled "Soul." The Lesson—Sermon is the same in all Christian Science churches throughout the world.

One of the related passages to be read from the deconstructional textbook is the following: "Knowing that Soul and its attributes were forever manifested through man, the Master healed the sick, gave sight to the blind, hearing to the deaf, feet to the lame, thus bringing to light the scientific action of the divine mind on human minds and bodies and giving a better understanding of Soul and salvation. Jesus healed sickness and sin by one and the same metaphysical process" ("Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy).

SENSING THE NEWS

By Thurman Sensing

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Southern States Industrial Council

THE LESSON OF CZECHOSLOVAKIA

Whatever the immediate outcome of the Czechoslovakian situation, it should be clear from a reading of recent news that Communism has not changed its character. Hopefully, American "liberals" who have been saying that the Russia of today is vastly different from the Russia of Stalinist times will acknowledge to themselves and to others that they were wrong.

A few years ago Walt Whitman Rowan, then head of the State Department Policy Planning Council and now a top White House adviser, was the author of the thesis that Communism is "melting." The Czechs, however, have shown that there is nothing melting about the thinking or actions of the Soviet Union. As soon as the Soviets saw that their position in Czechoslovakia was even slightly threatened, they began to display their military muscle. They demanded that the Czechs fall into line.

One of the phrases of recent years has been "politics of compromise," meaning a variety of centers. The Communists view that Communism no longer has a single center. Moscow, but is decentralized and developed in a variety of independent units.

From the Czech situation, however, we can see that the Russians hold that they are the one and only source of policy for the Communist world. They demand that their Central European satellites toe the mark and respect the authority of Communism in the Soviet Union.

The end result of these developments on the international scene is that Communism can be viewed as having the same basic policy for the American people. It is still an armed doctrine representing the Soviet dictatorship and is opposed to the slightest breath of personal or economic freedom.

It is instructive that the Czech situation should develop in this period before the American presidential election. The future of the cold war is still the chief issue facing the American people. If the U.S. fails to actively strive for victory in the cold war, it will continue to lose ground in the worldwide conflict between capitalism and Communism.

A new generation of Americans has grown up with no memory of the Communist record of tyranny and betrayal. Young Americans in their twenties aren't old enough to remember the soft-Communist outlook of the Roosevelt New Deal, the giveaway of lend lease supplies to the USSR, the surrender of Eastern Europe to the Russians at the end of World War II.

These young Americans don't have personal recollections of the Soviet spy cases which show that the Russians built their first atomic weapons on the basis of information stolen from the U.S. or supplied by traitors.

They don't recall the case of Alger Hiss, the high-ranking State Department official who served as a Soviet agent.

Older Americans need to help educate younger Americans and explain to them how the interests of the U.S. were sacrificed by Communist types in our midst. The young also need to know about the struggle of anti-Communism in this country over a 20-year period. They should be informed as to who stood for firmness against Communism and who had an ignorant or sentimental view of the Communist threat to freedom. Young voters should ask themselves where the leaders, candidates and policy stood in the desperate struggles involving Communism and the cold war.

For example, what was Herbert Humphrey's view of the Hiss case when it was the raging issue of the moment? Or, looking at more recent events, what was Mr. Humphrey's view when President Kennedy ordered the withdrawal of U.S. missiles from Turkey in exchange for the alleged removal of Soviet rockets from Cuba?

These questions aren't ancient history. They are living questions that pertain to basic attitudes regarding the cold war, the struggle between the forces of freedom and the forces of tyranny.

The record will show that America's "liberals" have been consistently wrong about Communism for 20 years. They have laughed at anti-Communism, saying they "see Reds under every bush." Meanwhile, the Soviets have swept on from success to success, capturing Cuba and penetrating Africa, the Middle East and Southeast Asia. The "liberals" have been determined to force Communism as containing reforming elements, whereas Communism is as brutal and anti-American as ever.

The United States is in danger today. If the "liberals" have guided America foreign policy, it is imperative that there be a change in leadership in Washington, to foreign policy thinking as well as in the handling of domestic affairs, which also stems from Communism's agenda.

America hasn't much time to adopt a new, vigorous posture toward the Communists' drive. The people need to act in firm

Admittedly, it is general. On the two greatest issues of the moment it is moderate. It does not call for intensification of the war in Vietnam but calls for shifting more of the burden to other nations and for a fair settlement. On the issue of crime and law and order, it calls for stern action against crime and disorder in the streets but also suggests efforts to eliminate the causes of crime and disorder.

While the platform calls for tax credits to corporations aiding the fight on poverty and relaxed welfare eligibility requirements for impoverished Americans, it does not advocate a guaranteed income. It also includes a call for a reorganized farm program, an end to federally-aided settlements with nations which are inflationary, economy in government, freer trade and more support of Israel, tax credits to those burdened with cost of higher education and opposition to the prohibition of China into the U.N.

The platform — so largely the work of Senator Everett Dirksen of Illinois — is a triumph for moderates and a defeat for extremists on both ends of the spectrum and would appear to have national appeal.

Florida Land Rush

On a recent trip to the West Coast (of Florida) we saw several billboards proclaiming "This Wallace Country," maybe a comeback from a popular Wallace or more recently, Robert King High's bid for the governorship. We agree to disagree with your signs, Mr. Wallace, but this is "everybody's country" . . . some about that!

Letter to the Editor

Editor: By all journalistic standards any column which is written in the first person singular should be by-lined. Yet perhaps it is because "Too Late to Classify" of August 10 is not by-lined since the author of the article not only shows a lack of ability to think and reason but also shows evidence of strong anti-democratic tendencies when he states that those who do not agree with his opposition to gun control legislation are "inferior" and "just plain nuts." Tactics such as these not only detract from the column but also show bigotry and extremism on the part of the author.

Let's take a look at this issue of gun control legislation. One argument frequently used against registration of guns and the licensing of those people who use them is that once the government has the ability to license gunners they will be tempted to give out licenses to anyone who can pay for them. This argument is completely ridiculous when we realize that even though all automobiles and their drivers are licensed there has been no attempt by the government to authorize or end their use.

The anonymous writer of the column states that "laws are not worth the paper they are written on if they are not enforced and most gun laws are not and cannot be enforced." Under our present system where the strength and requirements of gun control legislation vary from state to state it is impossible to enforce a program which requires people to present a license in order to purchase firearms since anyone can buy a gun without the license in a neighboring city or state. All too often we find that in the enforcement of our gun laws or our police departments. Although it is common practice to seize guns which have been used in a shooting incident the police normally return the weapons to their owners within a couple days. It goes without saying that any law which is not enforced is worthless. Yet we should not abolish all laws.

Very few people object to getting occupational licenses or to getting a driver's license. In fact, these licenses are aimed at preventing the wrong type of person from practicing an occupation or driving a car, a gun licensing law would prevent just the opposite.

This may be the answer to preventing convicted murderers from returning to society after a prison term to kill again, at least not with the same hand.

Uncle Dan from Doolie

Dear Mister Editor:

This was the time of summer when everybody out our way was trying to find a cool spot. The fellers was sitting around trying not to work up a sweat at the county store Saturday night and Bug Hookum reported he was ready for winter on account of he always had more energy when it was cold.

Ed Doolie said he had never saw Bug use no energy so he couldn't figure what he wanted with it. Anyhow, Ed said, he recalled Bug said never too keen on whatever kind of wealth he was having at the time.

Clem Webster allowed a how that what is wrong with the human race always wanting what they ain't got. He said them fellers sitting in air conditioned offices was probably wishing they was on some beach taking their caten to a cruise.

Zeke Grubb said he would like to be on some beach, but he said he would be setting in the shade watching the parade. He reported he had saw where on some beaches the gals ain't putting on them bikinis swimming suits this summer, they was painting 'em on. Women was wearing as near nothing as they can to stay out of jail, and the men folks was keeping their eyes on the situation, was Zeke's words.

The fellers at the store Mister Editor, was past the romancing age, but they was still in the looking and talking age. I reckon even Zeke's preacher would forgive 'em for discussing these matters off the record and where their old lady couldn't hear.

The feller that from the store built in to us got a awful of them two-seater law to the ground city. He said when he come in the store the biggest thing she was getting was her sunglasses. Her outfit didn't have no back at all, and not much more in front and said the storekeeper, but she stopped and asked her if he could help her and she said "No, may I just look?" He said he told her "Why, she's mean and may I?"

Josh Chidopher said he had to put in a good word for the women, that they wasn't no worse than men claimed he had saw a piece in the papers where this big league ballplayer keeps a car of hot girls on his locker.

Personal, Mister Editor, I didn't take no part in the discussion. I bigger women had ought to be free to wear what they want. At least in summer when they ain't no meat-and-potatoes can tell the gals from the boys. And you'll have to admit that ain't getting no more.

Yours truly

Uncle Dan

First Church Of Christ Scientist

"The Lord God is a sun and shield; the Lord will give grace and glory; no good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly." These words from Psalm are the Golden Text of this week's Christian Science Lesson-Sermon titled "Soul." The Lesson-Sermon is the same in all Christian Science churches throughout the world.

One of the related passages to be read from the denomination's textbook is the following: "Knowing that soul and its attributes were forever manifested through man, the Master healed the sick, gave sight to the blind, healing to the deaf, feet to the lame, thus bringing to light the scientific action of the divine Mind on human minds and bodies and giving a better understanding of soul and salvation. Jesus healed sickness and sin by one and the same metaphysical process" ("Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy).

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Williams, 1809 W. Lake Rd., recently returned from a two week business and vacation trip to Springfield, Illinois and vicinity.

County Superintendent: A Clarification

By Geoffrey Birch, Director Publications, Research and Information, Palm Beach County Board of Public Instruction

Mr. Robert W. Fulton, Jr., the County Superintendent and remains so until midnight, August 31, 1968. Mr. Fulton expects to be absent from his office through August on accrued annual leave.

Between now and midnight, August 31, 1968, Mr. Lloyd F. Early — a member of the county administrative staff in the title of Liaison Superintendent (appointed by the Board of Public Instruction) — has been placed in charge by Superintendent Fulton.

During August, Mr. Early, by delegation of Superintendent Fulton, will be acting for Mr. Fulton in the capacity of a Superintendent except in such matters as are legally restricted solely to the Superintendent.

Superintendent Fulton has resigned effective September 1, 1968. His term of office would not have expired until January 6, 1969. Therefore, Governing Kirk was pleased with the responsibility of filling the upcoming vacancy.

The Governor has now appointed Mr. Early as County Superintendent, effective September 1, 1968, to fill the unexpired term of Superintendent Fulton, which ends January 6, 1969.

During the interim period, August 1-31, 1968, Mr. Early can be given the courtesy title "Acting Superintendent."

It is hoped that such will help news media representatives and others from erroneously naming Mr. Early "Acting Superintendent" after September 1. He will NOT be "Acting Superintendent" but THE Superintendent.

Stay Alive Don't Tailgate!

Tailgating — following too closely the car ahead of you — is a frequent cause for rear-end collisions that often spell tragedy on our congested, high-speed highways.

What makes this type of accident so serious is that it can be so easily prevented. To avoid rear-end collisions, the American Insurance Association suggests this simple driving rule:

A safe following distance is a car length for each 10 miles an hour you are driving. If you are traveling 40 miles an hour, for example, 72 feet would be a reasonable following distance.

With nearly 17 million traffic mishaps reported in the United States last year, that resulted in 53,000 fatalities, one just can't drive too carefully, the Association states.

Rise History
Rise first came to America on a ship from Madagascar which landed in Charleston, S.C. for repairs. In appreciation for the hospitality he received, the captain presented the settlers with a bag of rice.

And with only 21 months before he's eligible to retire, Kemp was hoping he'd be able to spend it at Fort Roper, Fla. and not be separated from the family again.

Dick Kemp prepares to boat the big fish during recent excursion in waters off Cape Coral. Kemp wrote a letter to Mike while serving in Vietnam, explaining why he couldn't be home but promised to take Mike fishing when he returned to the United States. Garcia Corp., fishing tackle manufacturer, made trip to Cape Coral for Kemp family a reality. (Gulf American News Bureau Photo)

CAPE CORAL, Fla. — Freedom isn't free. SFC Richard A. Kemp wrote from Vietnam in his 7-year-old son, Mike, who wanted to know why his father couldn't be home with him.

We have to pay a price, he wrote, and the price right now for you and me and your mother and sister is the separation of the family.

Kemp also reiterated a promise that he'd take Mike fishing when he returned home. The letter won the Columbian, Fla., soldier a George Washington Honor Medal from the American Freedmen Foundation at Valley Forge. It also prompted a response from former President Eisenhower and an invitation from Garcia Corp., the fishing tackle manufacturer, for a week's fishing and vacationing at Cape Coral, Fla.

And fish they did. When the Kemps flew into Cape Coral, the Garcia people were on hand to present Mike and his parents Garcia-Mitchell rods and reels in a brief ceremony in the Golden of the Patriots — which also has won a Freedom Foundation award.

Jeane Kemp, 3, received a large air-filled toy porpoise and the whole family were guests at the Waikiki Waters and Porpoise Pool performances in the Cape Coral Gardens.

Next morning they were out early in Capt. Dick Kemp's "Estimote," a charter boat, casting for snook off the famous Estimating Island of Sanibel. It was obvious Kemp had handled a spinning rod before. Mike caught on quick.

Next morning they were out early in Capt. Dick Kemp's "Estimote," a charter boat, casting for snook off the famous Estimating Island of Sanibel. It was obvious Kemp had handled a spinning rod before. Mike caught on quick.

Capt. George Usherhill took them fishing out into the Gulf the next day aboard his "Lucky Ray," looking for groupers in a "last 60 feet of water and then they were flown to Bermuda Ranch Grants, a Spanish-style outdoor restaurant's center for the family near Naples, Fla. for a weekend of fishing in the Ten Thousand Islands.

"Mike's tickled to death with the fishing," Kemp said when they flew back to Cape Coral. "We've had a lot of fish and quite a variety."

Mike had headed in "some good-size groupers and caught his first snook, one of the best good wishes in the world. In all, the Kemps wound up with red fish, snook, mangrove, striped snout, trout, mahi-mahi and 60 groupers. They also had jumped three tarpon at Remuda Ranch, but like so many other fishermen they learned how adept the silver kings are at throwing the hook. None of the tarpon was hooked.

"He sure kept his promise to take me fishing," Mike said. Kemp's wife, Barbara, said her husband, who also is a veteran of World War II and Korea — wrote the letter to Mike because their son "kept hugging me to explain why his dad couldn't be home with him."

"Being a soldier means a lot more than wearing a uniform and marching in parades, son," Kemp wrote. "It means giving of ourselves completely when the time comes to do so. Sometimes it means giving your life. You who are not soldiers must give of yourselves, too, for the defense of our country and our people."

"My job in Vietnam will last only a year," he continued. "That much of our life together is liberty, I'm proud to do it. As an American, I have to do it. You, too, must be proud that I can do this. If you are, you'll be helping me a lot until I get home. Then we can go fishing like promised."

The foundation forwarded a copy of the letter to Gen. Eisenhower who wrote Kemp: "I thought your letter was not only convincing, it was inspiring. For my part, I should like to thank you for such an eloquent expression of Americanism; indeed, I wish that every American could read it."

The Kemps even had time to lounge around the Cape Coral Country Club pool and the beach before flying back to Columbia

Switzerland & Austria

By Edith Freedlund

As we reach Switzerland we notice quite a difference in the homes. There are many evergreen trees growing and we pass a few lumber yards. Some of the houses are of wooden construction or have wooden shutters. Switzerland has the highest standard of living in Europe, but not natural resources. Every man receives a pension at the age of 55. Switzerland is composed of 26 cantons and there are four languages spoken here. Women are not allowed to vote. This was put to a test last year and even the women voted against equal suffrage. They were part of the Roman Empire until 1291. The men must go in the Army for four months. They keep a gun at home and practice often, usually on Sunday after church. 60 per cent of the people are Catholic, 25 per cent Lutheran and the rest Calvinistic. They have a different prevalent every two years. At the time the president rules a bicycle to work and receives $10,000 in salary a year. The Swiss banks pay only one per cent interest on bank balances. 75 per cent of the money in them is not Swiss money. Our guide spoke of "hot money" in Geneva and Zurich.

We visited the famous Lion Monument in memory of the Swiss guards who were killed while guarding the King of France. The Pope has Swiss guards. A trip to the Alps is a must while in Lucerne. You go up a cog rail which is the steepest in the world and come down by two cable cars. It is known as the top of the mountain. At the restaurant located at the cable stop, tea was felt quite a cup. You can easily understand that the Swiss are in the milk industry. Thirty-eight million people visited Switzerland last year.

[Sometimes a cup of coffee is 25 cents, then again it will be 55 cents. Coca Cola is the same price. Coffee is served at breakfast time, but you have to buy it the other two times if you want it. Our first evening in Lucerne, we went in a group to a cheese fondue dinner and entertainment. You take a cube of bread on forks both hands and dip into the hot cheese mixture. The proprietor welcomed us and told us that if you fall it's dropped here. Bread in the fondue should have to kiss all the men. Soon there was much party and laughter at the next table and we saw a woman kissing every man in the long hall. She seemed to be enjoying it immensely. We had some good entertainment by Swiss people in native costume. One of the men played a tune on a long Swiss horn that looked like a pipe. Then they played about two dozen typical American tunes, among them were "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean," "Dixieland," and "East Side Westside." Lucerne seemed to be a favorite with everyone. It is right on a lake with mountains all around and beautiful chestnut trees in bloom.

Switzerland has an area of 16,000 square feet, and the Alps occupy 50 per cent of this. Belgium and Holland are smaller than Switzerland. Farming and cattle are the chief industry. The export market is mainly in a surplus of milk. Swiss chocolate is famous and we ate a lot on the bus off and on all day long.

Driving south we arrive at Liechtenstein, a tiny monarchy with an area of 61 square miles. There are 11 villages and 22 policemen and a jail with rooms in it. There are 20,000 people in this country and 19,000 cows. Baron von Faltz-Bern boarded the bus and gave us a very interesting speech. He had charge of the world famous wedding of the 22-year-old son of Prince Francis of Austria in 1955. There were 10,000 guests at the wedding and 10,000 tourists. They celebrated 48 hours without stopping. This wedding was on TV all over the world. The Baron has been to the United States and to the Hunley-Brinkley T.V. program. Income tax is only one per cent and many business firms keep an office here, though the factory is far away. Paul Gallio, the writer, lives here. We spent half an hour looking around and buying souvenirs. It is a very charming country.

Now we are going through the Swiss Alps. We can see the snow line half way up the mountains. The tall pines are covered with snow and look grey-green in the distance. Soon we are driving in a snowstorm — what a thrill! Everything in sight is white with snow. At our first rest stop, most of us were out in the snow taking pictures. The houses dotted up the mountain sides seem so far away and we all are wondering how the people make a living. Our guide, Jerry, is from Austria and has been selling us for days how wonderful it was. There are 7,000,000 people in Austria, Germany and England since the war. This is the only country Germany has ever left after occupying it. Austria has nice provinces and is only 1.7 of its original size. It is a very religious country and we see many wayside shrines. There was a Crucifix in our restaurant and we see them frequently. Instead of one or four clocks in the church steeple, as we have been noticing all through this part of Europe, they use a round "oison tower" on the churches, making them resemble a Mosque. There are no Hippies allowed in Austria. Jerry told us he would give us a nice lot for every mini-skirt we saw in London we use enough mini-skirts to last us forever! There are many ski-lifts and buildings with the Zimmer, meaning rooms to rent. This part of the country is noted famous skiers. There are many ski-schools here. The glare of the sun on the snow can burn a person in a very short time.

Put Majority Rule Back In Government — Register Your Vote!

Tallahassee — Secretary of State Tom Adams issued a challenge today to Florida's hundredth anniversary of statehood by urging citizens to register their votes in the upcoming election. Adams said, "I call on all civic and fraternal organizations in Florida to join with me in a statewide campaign to help us register the growing trend of voter apathy in the State."

Adams announced plans for the massive voter registration drive called "V.O.T.E." The campaign will be coordinated by the Office of Secretary of State and the Southern Political Education Action Committee — a non-profit, non-partisan, tax-exempt foundation whose purpose is to encourage voter education and voter participation. The letters of V.O.T.E. stand for Voter Orientation, Training and Education. Adams said the drive has been prompted by the fact that the voter turnout in the last primary election was the lowest in history. Only 44 per cent of registered Democrats and 41 per cent of registered Republicans went to the polls.

"As a result, the Democratic nominee for United States Senate was chosen by only 12 per cent of our eligible voters and the Republican nominee by only 4 per cent," Adams said. "This display of voter apathy is shocking and it is especially in these days when it seems to be so fashionable to express one's opinion by a ballot — when many people who usually support the leaders about usually

Trailside Signs Unlock Secrets

Time was when you could identify a tourist by the back of gold-colored clothing in his hands. Now today in Everglades National Park, where unobtrusive and informative trailside signs take the guesswork out of the region's subterranean vegetation, and leave hands free for cameras and binoculars. Tree devoted biologists might care to know about the park's 1,000 different kinds of seed-bearing plants. But for the average sight-seer, there's an interesting museum in a wing of the Visitor Center Building.

Indoors or outdoors, displays big and little provide the sight-seer with a greater knowledge and deeper appreciation of America's third-largest National Park. The officials who energetically work on these exhibits continue to receive favorable comment from enlightened visitors. For them—THAT'S a good sign.

At Fanning Island, near the modern lino and marine operated by the Everglades Park Company, a subsidiary of General Hunt, there's an interesting museum. Displays focus on the region's history and wildlife. The museum is in a wing of the Visitor Center Building.

A case in point is at Mahogany Hammock—a boardwalk trail located about 18.5 miles from Fanning, the major vacation complex in the 1.4 million acre park. The word "hammock," says one sign, means a stand of tropical vegetation surrounded by slightly lower terrain. The name, it points out, is a derivation of a Spanish word "hammock" or "hammock."

The largest mangrove swamp in the continental United States is located here, together with a profusion of orchids, air plants, ferns and other vegetation. Signs spaced every few yards along the elevated trail lead to the stunner tree, buttressed orchid, stranger big and cabbage plants — not growing nearby, one of the small metal signs on the walkway observes that hammocks such as this are the favorite habitats of the striped owl — with its call that sounds like two rocks for your head.

Just seven miles away, the Pay-day-okee Overlook has its share of special signs too. When the visitor stands here and looks over a vast and seemingly endless prairie of forbidding swamps, he sees scores of trees in the distance that look like giant sentinels. These, a sign reveals, are bay-hams — low, stunted trees with many overgrown with vines. In contrast to the hammocks, bay-hams feature relatively few types of trees. The taller ones usually stand in the center of these swampy areas. Bay-hams have a characteristic dome-shaped appearance. Bay-hams have a sharp, dark, and frequently well-defined deer trails extend from one to another.

All along the main park road, and at the self-guiding trails, visitors will come upon signs ranging from small simple kinds to elaborate glass-encased displays. An signpost directed the Fanning trailside facilities on Florida Bay, diminishes signs on both sides of the well-paved highway much in evidence, identifying the unusual.

YOUR MONEY

By Richard A. Posner
How many times have you said, or heard someone else say, "I can't seem to save any money." Living costs are high, and they just seem to eat up your earnings.

Experienced financial counselors have some expert advice on this matter of not being able to save. Human psychology enters into the picture. There's always a need for cash on hand in your pocket (or checking account). This doesn't mean that you're wasting money by being extravagant. You can spend sensibly and still use up all the cash available.

So then how do you save? The answer is that you must save BEFORE you pay your living expenses, not after. If you plan to save what's left over at the end of the month, generally you'll find there's nothing left. The answer is to put your savings aside first — then learn to live on what remains. It's surprising how many people find that they can live on $25 or $30 less per month, providing they pay up in savings and not in their wallet.

Start this savings-first plan yourself. Open an account with us this week, however small the amount. It will add up fast.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMER

From Mrs. Floyd Becker, Sumner, Kentucky: I don't suppose you would call me an Old Timer, but I am a grandmother several times.

I remember so many things about my childhood that it's hard to choose what stands out the most in my mind.

I attended the one-room country school behind a large coal store in the middle of the room. Water was carried by a spring a mile away. We had spelling bees and arithmetic matches on Friday afternoons.

I remember my father's country store. Everything came in bulk form and had to be weighed for sale. Customers brought in eggs, chickens, wool, sorghum, all kinds of roots, walnuts and furs to sell or trade for groceries. The baroque barrel was a necessity as everyone used kerosene for their lamps.

I can remember going to my grandmother's at Thanksgiving and Christmas on a sled when snow was too deep to travel by automobile. We were carried from a cave in bushes, for drinking and for cooking. I was the coldest - and best - year I have ever tasted. Climbing over the hay in the barn loft in search of hen's nests was a great thrill.
